The Cleveland Heraid and Scuator Sherman's Record. We suppose it is scarcely neces tate that the Herald never resorts to legitmute argument, but contents itself with superficial handling of such questions as it cannot evade. Such is its course on the Senutorial question. Feeling itself bound to defend its political "ford and master," John Sherman, it accuses us of "virulence and "bad taste," and pronounces Mr. Sherman an "able statesman" and a "de-voted laborer." If dogmatism were logic, then, indeed, would the Herald's claim be established. On the subject of Mr. Sherman's advocacy of the return of Negro oldiers to loyal masters, the Herald, with which it reproduces from the Cincinnati Volksblatt. It is certainly fortunate for Mr. Sherman's organ in this city that it is able thus to find ideas "ready made," and still more fortunate for Mr. Sherman, for otherwise the ideas would have been wantng. We have earefully read the remarks the Volksblatt on this subject, and have been able to find only one point meriting the Negrous sought by Mr. Sherman to be is not. returned to slavery. The amendment to the militia bill, introduced on the 9th July, 1802, by Hon. He spoke murely deprecation of dilatory motions, and-so forth, properly claiming that a vote should be had. If the Herald can find any comfort in this speech, let it publish it. It will not crowd its columns, for it is not ove three inches in length, though the question at issue was the wiping out of the last enctment of the barbarous slave code. Dur ng the course of the parliamentary skirmishing which followed, a motion to adjourn was made by Riddle, of Delaware. It did not prevail, but John Sherman voted "yea," not withstanding he had just declared : "It s manifest that a majority of the Senate desire action upon this bill; it is right hat they should have it." Subsequently, an adjournment was effected, with the understanding that on the next day the bill day it was discussed at length, being op-
